Judging Criteria EMPA Awards for Excellence in Emergency Communications Research Category

Research

| - | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| Research question | Was the problem/research question/s clearly stated? |
| and the project itself | How well did the project answer an agency question? |
| (15 marks) | How applicable was the project to operational activity? |
| | What was the research process? |
| Literature review | How extensive was the literature review that supported the project? |
| (15 marks) | How well did it draw out existing knowledge and gaps in that knowledge? |
| Data collection and research ethics | How well was the target/participant community/ies researched and understood in the development of the project or activity? |
| (15 marks) | How well did the project or activity recognise the diversity within a community and then accommodate these with diversity in participant recruitment? |
| | How well were obstacles and problems articulated? |
| | What were the shortcomings/limitations of the project – and how will these be used in lessons learned in future? |
| Agency partnerships and collaboration | Were opportunities taken to work with other agencies? What existing foundations were leveraged? |
| (10 marks) | Have the research outcomes provided a foundation for further relationships or built substantially on an existing network? |
| | What network improvements were made within the agency/ies (or could potentially be made) during or as a result of the research findings? |
| | How was extension conducted with others about your research results? |
| Results and | How well were the results reported in plain English? |
| implications for | How easily could the results be translated into implementable actions? |
| practice (25 marks) | Has the project or activity provided a foundation for further research and/or built substantially on existing research? |
| EMPA Principles (20 marks) | The work of EMPA is guided by seven key principles which are outlined below. Choose as many as are relevant to your entry and write a short paragraph for each which explains how your entry upholds that principle. A comprehensive downloadable guide to the EMPA Principles can be found at https://www.empa.org.au/our-objectives |